FREW, CAMPBELL & HART, Wheeling, W. Va., a cound-class matter.

The INTELLIGENCER has heretofore found profitable instruction in the letters of the English correspondent of the American Manufacturer. The same source is again drawn upon for interesting matter touch ing the condition of the iron and steel intries in this country. In a recent letter the correspondent told of the troubles of the Welsh iron and steel masters, who were about to reduce wages as some compensa tion for a low and still falling market. The reduction has come, ranging from five to the unsatisfactory condition of the busi--"the imposition by the Government of the United States of a tariff which is Were it not that her duties are so high the iron and steel trades of this country could compete with the [American quantity of rails into America." This is what we have been saying to those who believe that a policy of protection is necessary to the general walfare. Those of our countrymen who do not believe in that policy, and the agents of foreign interests kep here to try to break down that policy, have insisted that the barrier of protection might be removed without largely increase imports, for home manufacturers would be obliged to meet the foreign com-But the foreign manufacturer knows better than this. Give him a low tariff, or no tariff, and with the aid of the sheriff he undertake to close up his American competitor. For awhile we should have lower prices, but after foreign capital and labor should have mastered our American market, and driven American capital and labor to seek other employments, the reward. Home competition removed we should have to pay the foreign manuor do without. Our money would go abroad and stay there. The writer recently heard the Democratic Governor of Maryland say, in a speech at the Berkeley County Fair, that if we did om a country it would not buy from us, that the more we bought from a given country the more it would buy from Governor Hamilton should have been told on the spot, and the people who heard him should have been told, that there is little if any truth in his remark. England sells to us all that we will take. In return she takes what she wants, generally what what we buy of her. For example, she takes so many quarters, more or less, of our careals, because she finds it to her advantage, not stopping to look over the exports to see whether we are buying liberally of her manufacturers.

In the north of England, also, there is a believed to have been reached. Manufacturers are hoping to get wages down low enough to enable them to alip their products in under our "prohibitory tariff."

The Earl of Dufferin is a happy man. He has what the London World has called a disciplined and chastened Hibernian temperament. His paragraphs are likened to those of Sheridan, whose blood runs through his veins.

The priests of Brittany have ordered the Breton girls not to sell their hair. In London the autumn fashion decree that ladies shall not crop their hair.

Nature says that a fish ten inches long, with a beak shaped something like a batchet, jumped over a small boat at Aden, in which some English officers were rowing, which some English officers were rowing, and striking the hat of one of them, knock-ed it overboard. ### SHALL WOMAN PREACH?

How She Stauds in Various Religio

been troubling the Universalists in their convention at Washington. It is one of those which periodically come up in some form or other in several of the leading denom nations. Some of the denominations are willing to recognize the power of woman as a speaker and an evangelist, but there is a strong feeling against bestowing regular ordination on her. A few Universalis is a strong feeling against bestowing regu-lar ordination on her. A few Universalist and Congregationalist ladies regularly sup-ply pulpits. There is an instance some-where out West where a pastor has a preaching wife who supplies his pulpit when he is disabled or absent. The Methodist Church has consented to license lady preachers, but refuses to or-dain them. Among the Baptiets, ladies exhort in prayer meetings and missionary exhort in prayer meetings and missionar neetings, but are not in demand as gulp orators or pastors. The Protestant Episco pal Church has of late years favorably con-didered the subject of "deaconesses," but has not invited the ladies, who make them useful in this capacity to exercise ifts of oratory. The Roman Catholic in finds abundant use for the noble their gifts of oratory. The Roman Catholic Church finds abundant use for the noble work for its Sisters of Charity, but does not ask them to preach. The Presbyterian Church stoutly sets its face against woman preachers, although there is in that community a large minority in favor of the exercise of womanly gifts in the exhorting, expunding and evangelical lines ercise of woman's gilled and the expounding and evangelical lines of thristian effect. The principal passage in the Scriptures which is relied on to close the mouth of woman is that in which St. Paul says: "Let your women keep silence in the churches." But a difficulty arises Paul says: "Let your women keep sinese in the churches." But a difficulty arises in regard to this, from the fact that almost in the same breach St. Paul quite as positively forbids the wearing of pearls or ornaments of gold. Outside of the Society of Friends, in which the women speak as freely as the men, nobody seeks to enforce the injunction as to ornaments. If it were enforced among Christian women it would with half the iswelry stores in Christonenforced among Obristian women it would ruin half the jawelry stores in Christon-dom. And as to "keeping silence in churches" it is not strictly enforced or women. Many a lady organist makes more noise than the minister, and so it is more noise than the minister, and so he with the lady choir-singers. Some ladies have infant classes and Bible classes which are larger than some of the congregations which male preachers address. The Universalists settled the troublesome question by a very neat device. It had come up in connection with the editor. dreas. The Universal device. It had come up in connection with the education of young men for the ministry. The proposal had been made to include young women among the ministerial students. After a long and sparkling discussion, the convention agreed to make it read "young persons." So the problem of co-education is solved, for the present a convention is solved. n that denomination is solved, for the pres in that denomination is solved, for the pres-ent, at least. Unless some projound theo-logical hair-splitter shall decide that a wo-man is not a "person," the Universalist uninistry is open to such young ladies as may apply. As for the elderly ladies, if there are such, no provision is made for them. Perhaps they had better not seek the ministry.

cruing from the sale thereof he expeditiously spent, but not for rent or for bread At last she tires of that kind of life, and even for her husband and children, is econceded. But somehow we can't help grinding our teeth when we see poor woman marched off to prison know that the evidence against drop in wages of from seven-and-a-half to lifteen per cent, and the lowest limit is not to his lager beer. Where is the American who desires to see the bulwark of protection throw down, so that American labor shall be brought to the low level of foreign wages? American capital would suffer, too, in such a conflict. But for a while capital can live off itself. Labor must be employed or it starves.

We shall do well if we take to heart and profit by the lessons which come from that country which is striving to convert us to free trade, in hope that in the end it may swallow us up.
